McLeod Park a county secret

BY ED LEPOMA

Word is getting out about one of Hancock County's best kept secrets.

McLeod Park, a 328-acre nature and wildlife preserve that straddles the banks of the scenic Jourdan River outside of the Kiln, is enjoying peak attendance, and improvements planned or underway will likely lure even-more visitors.

Roland Lee, whom the Hancock County Board of Supervisors selected to take over operations of the water park, has tracked visitors since last April when he took over as Park Ranger, and has seen a phenomenal and steady rise in the number of people using the park.

And, the news is being spread without any paid media advertisement, but only by word of mouth by people who have visited the park and by a brochure he's placing at rest stops off Interstate 10 in Mississippi and Louisiana.

In the last nine months, the park has hosted 107,324 visitors. That's a 64 percent increase from the 65,623 who used the park for the same period in 1995. In fact, by June of last year, the park had already exceeded 68,000 visitors.

nic facilities, boat launch. public pavilions and ball park, but most were campers who stayed in their recreational vehicles or trailers for one or two nights and groups who camped out in last June when 27,890 visitors poured into he park, a whopping 131 percentage increase from the 12,051 that came in June of 1995.

Some came to use the pic-

The park sometimes shut down during the slow month of December, but Lee said this year it hosted 787 visitors. compared to 162 that visited in December of 1995. And last November, another typically slow month, usage of the park increased 400 percent from 479 visitors in 1995 to 2,612 in

Lee also decided to create a haunted house and offer hayrides at McLeod Park last Halloween, and said the turnout was "tremendous." He said he plans to make it an annual

The park also rents out a large covered pavilion and a smaller one for events, such as company picnics or even wed-

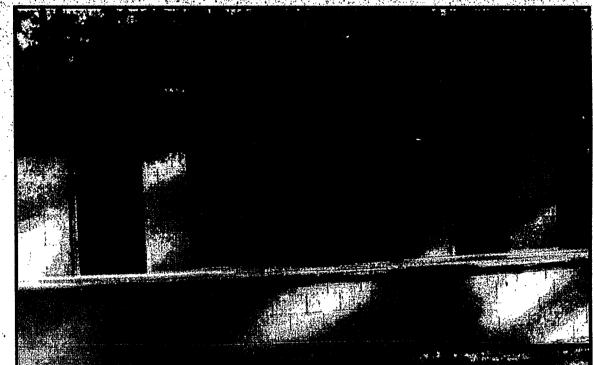

"NASA had one party last June, and I think about 2,000 people turned out," said Lee.

The park generated nearly $100,000 last year, and Lee said he feels it is on its way to become self-sustaining, but there are projects pending that will require state and federal funding.

One thing he's sure will bring more visitors and less complaints is a state-aid-funded project that will widen and blacktop Texas Flat Road. leading into the park from Interstate 10, Hwy. 603 and the northern part of Hancock County.

Lee said he asks visitors to complete a questionnaire after they visit McLeod Park. "The road is the biggest complaint I get," said Lee. "And, you can't blame people coming in with an $80,000 recreational vehicle, and they have to straddle potholes and a road that is part red-clay and part asphalt."

The road widening project is already on the drawing board, and the $500,000 job will be totally funded with state-aid monies set aside by the Mississippi Department of Transportation. The road will be widened to 24 feet (two 12-foot lanes), completely repayed, with six foot shoulders and drain culverts installed.

Gerald Gex, the attorney to the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, said Tuesday right-of-ways have been purchased from most property owners, and there is only one holdout. He said he was hopeful the county would settle with the landowner, but if not, he will file an eminent domain lawsuit to obtain the easement.

Large crowds, including television stations from Wisconsin, set up vigils at the Broke Spoke Lounge just off of Highway 603 in Kiln. But the going was slow around the entire area due to sightseers and an increased volume of traffic.

Last Friday night, an estimated 5,000 people turned out for a block party at the Broke Spoke, far more than Peterson expected.

Hancock Planning Commission holds historic first meeting

BY ED LEPOMA

Hancock County's Planning Commission met Thursday for the first time since the new comprehensive zoning ordinance was passed, and three conditional uses were approved.

Commission attorney John Scafide patiently led the five planning board members threw the maze of new regulations in a meeting that last almost three

The consensus was that Willie Gavney, the county building inspector who is also serving as the Code Enforcement Officer, will need at least one additional person to check out sites where waivers to zoning are requested before the application comes before the Commission.

The purpose of a "conditional use" in each of the county's nine zoning districts is to provide for certain uses not actually allowed, but a use that would serve the public need and not adversely impact an area. Most requests for conditional uses require an applicant to go before the Commission, but the fivemember board, by majority vote, can approve the use without having the applicant subjected to a public hearing.

In its initial meeting, Commissioners approved three applications; and tabled another until Gavney can inspect the

The Commission voted unanimously to allow Cellular South to construct a 300-foothigh radio transmission tower in the 8500 block of Hwy. 607, south of Interstate 10, subject to the purchase of approximately one acre of land. The area is now zoned A1-Agriculture.

Representing Cellular South, Cary Trapani said the property is located in the buffer zone surrounding the Stennis Space Center and would not be near any populated area. But, they contended construction of the tower would help to reduce the current blackouts experienced by those communicating via ra-zoning, and intends to close this dio in areas of Pearlington and Port Bienville.

Developer T. Brashier was also given permission to build one or possibly two four-plex: apartments on 1.9 acres he: owns west of Construction Road and south of Noma in Diamondhead. The area is Zoned C-2, and four-plexes are allowed as a conditional use.

Brashier said he planned to start on one unit, then build another, but he will have to come back to the Planning Commission when he starts the second unit. He said he plans a two-story structure with two apartments downstairs and two

Commissioners also unanimously approved the application of Diamondhead United Methodist Church to build at 5305 Noma Drive, subject to purchase of additional

The church initially purchased 3 acres of land prior to week on an additional 4.5 acres, which would allow for parking. The area is zoned R-1A and there are already three churches in the area; the Diamondhead Community (Presbyterian) Church, a Baptist Church and St. Thomas Episcopal quest to allow applicant Louis Stinson to put a trailer on a 1.1 acre lot he owns off Blue Meadow Road. The area is zoned R-2, and Gavney will inspect the property to determine uses now allowed. Stinson was asked to return for the Feb. 6 meeting.

Claude Danemann, who lives off Fire Tower Road on Blue Berry Road, an area zoned A1-Agriculture, said he now has greenhouses on his property and sells plants to the wholesale market. He said, as he interpreted it, the present zoning text would not allow him to have a caretaker live on the property.

Commissioners said caretakers are allowed in an Agriculture zone, but that fact is not actually spelled out in the zoning ordinance so they might have to amend it in the future.

Community Education a success; enrollment tops 300 for classes

For a slight fee, classes are being offered in subjects ranging from gardening to introduction to the basic computer. The classes are scheduled Monday and Thursday evenings either at Hancock High School or Bay High, and fees range from a low of $20 to a high of $60 for courses that run from three to six weeks. Fees can be paid with VISA or MasterCard or cash.

"All six of the computer courses filled up immediately,' said Roberts. She said, on the average, instructors try to limit the number of students in each class from 20 to 25, but in other cases, such as "Introduction to Line Dancing" more students can be accommodated.

"Both of our Stain Glass classes are also full," said Roberts. She said about 16 other classes had the minimum of 10 enrolled, so those would also be taught this session.

Roberts said she was impressed with the range of adults enrolling in various classes.

Dr. Mike Reed, Superintendent of Bay St. Louis Schools, added his thoughts.

"It's an outstanding program they have put together," said Reed. "It is an excellent way to involving the community in the schools again. To get them back into schools. These schools are paid for by the taxpayers, and many of them have never seen the inside our schools. I hope we can only get bigger and better."

Randolph was also enthusiastic about the community

"It's great for the commun-," said Randolph." He said, while the program hopes to at least break even on costs, some classes would be offered with the minimum number of students, in hopes of attracting more the next cycle.

BETWEEN THE LINES

By Richard Meek

BY RICHARD MEEK

The mission was complete, the journey that had taken Brett Favre from the playing fields of Kiln to the Louisiana Superdome had reached its end. Favre ruled the football kingdom now, the NFL was at his feet. It was Favre wearing the crown reserved for gridiron royalty.

Yet, as he addressed the scribes documenting his finest hour, a casual Favre looked as if he had just walked off the 18th hole at the Cardinal Course at Diamondhead and was headed for a refreshment. Perhaps his acceptance into the royal family of the NFL had yet to sink in.

But his steel eyes still held the intensity of the previous three hours, when he had accounted for three touchdowns in Green Bay's 35-21 drubbing of New England in Super Bowl XXXI.

"(The Super Bowl victory) means everything," Favre said before departing for a postgame celebration with Hancock County friends on a Bourbon Street balcony.

"I've been through a lot of tough times this year and a lot of good," he said. "They both kind of equal themselves out, and you take the good with the bad. To win this, it's unbelievable.

'It's hard to even talk about. It definitely makes this past year seem a little better.'

Of concern to Packer backers was the game's opening minutes, where Favre's past pregame jitters turned into interceptions and weak performances. But he crased all doubt early, throwing a 54-yard touchdown pass to Andre Rison on the Pack's second play. Favre audibilized when he noticed the Patriot secondary foolishly lined up in single coverage against Rison. He followed with a Super Bowl record 81-yard pass to Antonio Freeman and scored on a short run with a lunge at the goal. "Last night, I told (Favre) him how I was going to take some of the pressure off early," Green Bay coach Mile Holm-gren said. "He responded well. He played a very controlled game. "He knew this was his

"I had more runs in there than I normally would," Holmgren said of his early offensive scheme. "I wanted him to have a feeling of completing a couple of balls before he really had to let it go. And he screwed up my whole deal by throwing for the long touchdown pass on the second play of the game."

By game's end, Favre would complete 14 of 27 passes for 246 yards. But even that performance could not top that of teammate Desmond Howard. Although it was Favre's magic that steered the Pack to New Orleans, it was Howard's elusiveness that finally jettisoned the surprisingly pesky Patriots.

Howard, Green Bay's summer's reclamation project, was named Most Valuable Player after he set or tied eight Super Bowl records for return yards. The most important was How-

New England, which had overcome an early 10-0 deficit, appeared to have momentum after cutting the lead to 27-21. But the Patriots, in what was probably coach Bill Parcells' last game as the New England foreman, laid down after Howard's return. It was time to pass the Cheddar in Wisconsin.

Desmond is an unbelievable player," Favre said. "We love watching him play, first of all. He's always got a way of kind of turning the game around and putting it out of reach or something. He gets us going."

Favre admitted in the locker room that one Vince Lombardi trophy will not satisfy his thirst. He wants more.

The challenge for the Packer organization is to keep this unit intact. Realistically, concede Howard will be wearing shades of a different color next autumn. He is adamant about a great involvement in the offense as a receiver, but there is no fit for him in the Packers' scheme.

Additionally, Howard will demand Monopoly money after this season, especially coming off of his Super Bowl performance. Green Bay is ready to unload the Brinks truck to pay Favre, so some players, Howard most likely, may get squeezed out by the salary cap.

If the core of the Packers do return, it is no stretch to believe Super Bowl XXXI was the first of many for this team. Contrary to what at least one national announcer said, the Packers are a

Coast Episcopal wins sub-district championship

BY RICHARD MEEK

Coast Episcopal's odyssey from the dredges of District 8A to subdistrict champion continues next week when the MPSA district playoffs open in Natchez. The Raiders enter the tournament as the top seed.

Episcopal won the subdistrict title with a 67-57 victory last Friday over Pine Hills. The Raiders, under second year coach Charles Marshall, are 10-12 overall, 4-0 in league play, only one year after a last place finish.

"We have some good kids th good talent," Marshall id. "We gained experience and were able to put it together as the year went along.

"Hopefully, we can win a game in the district playoffs, and advance to the South State Tournament."

Buddy Dauterive scored 22 points to lead the Raiders against Pine Hill. Brad Alexander added 14 points, Louis Dunklin 13 and Chris Daute-

OLA faces Gulfport tonight; winner earns playoff berth

BY RANDY PONDER

The Our Lady Academy Crescents face the Gulfport Lady Admirals tonight at 6 p.m. in Rock-A-Chaw Stadium in a must-win high school soccer

The Crescents, 10-5-1 overall and 7-4 in division, have fought off a four-game losing streak with two straight district wins to climb back to within one win of reaching the state playoffs. OLA won the first meeting between the two schools, 4-2, back on November 23.

"If we win, we go. It's that simple," OLA coach Karen Hunt said. "The girls know they have to get the job done. Gulfport has a very strong defensive team. I expect a low so ng game. I can assure you, we'll be there in full force.

Gulfport coach Howard McNeil has guided his young, second year team to a 8-5 overall record and 6-5 in district.

"We have only three seniors on the team and none of them have any previous soccer experi-ence," McNeil stated. "It fact, only six of our girls have played before joining the team. Most of our players are eighth and ninth graders. They've worked real hard and are excited to have a sport they can play."

McNeil also coaches the Gulfport boys team. They too are playing tonight, in Hattiesburg. Because the boys are on the road, McNeil must accompany them and thus will not be present at the OLA-Gulfport show-down. "I'll be on pins and needles, wishing I could be there," the Gulfport coach said. Last Tuesday night, the

Crescents upended Picayune 3-1. Ashley Chrisman and Elizabeth Uram scored for OLA. The other Crescent goal was inadvertently scored by one of the Picayune players on an OLA corner kick. The Picayune goal was their first of the season. Last Thursday, OLA beat

Long Beach 3-2 in a sudden victory shootout. The regulation game ended in a 2-2 tie behind the goals of Erin Favre and Katie Fillingame.

Neither team scored during the overtime period, consisting of two ten-minute halves.

Each team then scored twice in the ensuing shootout, where five players per team took turns going one-on-one against the opposing keeper. Jill Ruther-ford and Erin Favre scored for

With the game still tied after the shootout, a sudden victory, shootout took place, with each team sending one player out to shoot on goal. If one team scores and the other doesn't on their try, the game ends. If the game is still tied after the first set of shooters, then another set is selected, and this continues until one team wins.

Long Beach was first to shoot, but OLA keeper Lynn Dubuisson stopped the shot. Melissa McPhail then kicked the ball to the top right corner of the goal over the outstreched hands of the Long Beach keeper for the win. "It was a beautiful shot," the Crescent coach stated. "Their hearts were in it, they wanted to win. They played well. A shootout is very stressful, not only on the players, but also on the pa-rents and fans. It was totally quiet in the stands."

Last year, the Crescents took first place in district only to lose to Clinton in the second round of the state playoffs. If OLA reaches the playoffs this year, they will again have to travel to Clinton to face the Lady Arrows

Bay High begins playoffs in Meridian Friday night

BY RANDY PONDER

The Bay High School boys soccer team travels to Meridian Friday night to open play in the state playoffs. They will face West Lauderdale at 7 p.m. in the Meridian Soccer Complex.

"We just have to play tough," Tiger coach Ken Matthew stated. "We need to play our game and take it to them early. The boys have been playing very well together. They talk it up a lot out on the field. They re hungry. Matthew said the four-hour bus trip to Meridian would be a disadvantage. "We plan to leave le early so we'll nav to loosen up and unwind."

The boys state soccer playoffs are divided into two groups; Class I for the larger schools, and Class II for smaller schools like Bay High and St. Stanislaus.

"We have played several Class I teams this season," Matthew said. "We didn't have to, but we wanted the experience. Hopefully it will pay dividens for us."

The Tigers canceled their last two games of the season to have a little extra time to prepare for the playoffs.

"Those were not division games, and they really didn't mean anything in the standings," the Tiger coach explained. The boys were kind of disappointed, they wanted to get ten wins on the season. But we needed the time off to nurse several little nagging injuries, and I didn't want to take a chance on getting someone hurt." Bay High finished the season in second place in their division, two points behind St. Stant slaus. The Tigers posted a 8-4-4 overall record. Bay High and the Rock-A-Chaws defeated the same divisional teams and split the season series with other, (Bay High won the first game 3-2 and St. Stanislaus took the second meeting 2-1) to finish with identical 3-1 division records. St. Stanislaus took

The starting line up for the Tigers playoff game is expected to be: Greg Dupuy and Hung Le at forward; Chris Foster, Timmy Kingston, Mark Perniciaro and Jason Rieben at midfield; Nick Saucier at stopper; Brandon Dupuy and Cameron Schwartz as fullbacks; David Flowers at sweeper; and Steven contest, Bay High shot down North Forrest 9-1. Timmy Kingston and Hung Le each scored three goals for the Tigers. Corey Ray, Jason Rieben and Jeffrey Rose scored one goal each. North Forrest got their goal on a penalty kick.

"The game was played under horrible conditions," Matthew stated. "Our field was a mess. Rave Murphys and despenteralls morning trying to pump water off the field Weshad water ankle-deep five feet out onto the field from the sidelines." A new running track constructed at Joe D. McCollouch Stadium, which lacks proper drainage, acts much like a dam and blocks the runoff of rain water creating a lake on the playing field. Several home games had to be relocated this year due to flooding of the field. On other occasions, Matthew has had to pump water from the field

Lady Tigers host first round of soccer playoffs Saturday

BY RANDY PONDER The undefeated Bay High School Lady Tigers soccer team (14-0-2) opens the state playoffs Saturday, February 1, at 1 p.m. in Joe D. McCollouch Stadium against Jim Hill.

"If we play defense like we've been doing all year, and if the offense plays like they did Mon-day against Long Beach, we'll be fine," Tiger coach Ken Matthew said.

"That is, if we can get the water off the field," the Tiger coach

A new, recently constructed running track lacks proper drainage. It blocks the flow of rain water much like a dam, causing the water to backup onto the playing field. On several occasions this season, home soccer games were forced to be played at opponents fields.

Many other times, coach

Matthew has had to pemp water from the field himself. He is reportedly checking around the area for another field, just in case the rain continues and the lady directs home field in debted with the better of the party of the second

Earlier this week, the Lady Tigers shut out the Long Beach Lady Bearcats 6-0 Monday night. Andie Fillingame and Amanda Kingston sparked the Bay High offense with two goals each. Mea Bordes and Michelle Perniciaro added one goal each.

We had assists on all six goals."
Michelle Perniciaro had three assists, while Katie Di-Benedetto, Andie Fillingame and Lindsey Piazza had one

Seventh grader Sky Thomas recorded the shulout in goal. The Lady Tigers have allowed only four goals the entire season, shirthing out their oppo-played defense. They did not played defense. They did not take another shot on goal during the game. "I think they wanted to get us into a shootout." Matthew said. "Our goalie is young, and I think they wanted to try to take advantage of her size."

The regular game ended with the score knotted at one each. The overtime period also ended without any additional scoring and without Gulfport taking any shots on goal.

In the shootout, the Lady Admiral's first shot bounced off the cross bar. Their next three shots were all stopped by keeper Sky Thomas, Andie Fillingame and Jennifer Storey connected on their kicks for Bay High. The other two Tiger kicks missed their target.

With the Lady Tigers up by two goals, the final shootout attempt was not taken because there was no way for Gulfport to come back and tie or win.

Proceeds from the Mike Ditka-Casino Magic Legends Celebrity Golf Classic and benefit concert held at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis last Friday, raised $28,500 with additional cash donations amounting to a total of over $30,000. Last year's event raised $15,000.

Executive Director of the Make-A-Wish Foundation of Mississippi, Suzanne Vivier, was presented a check for $28,500 on Tuesday, Jan. 28. Vivier said the money will be used for children in the area. On the Mississippi Gulf Coast alone there are over 30 wishes on our list to be filled," she said.

General manager for Casino Magic Bay St. Louis and Make-A-Wish board member, Jeff Dahl, added that wishes range from a child asking for a computer to meeting their favorite athlete or taking a trip to Disney World.

Casino Magic als donated a football autographed by Coach Mike Ditka. Vivier says that Make-A-Wish will use the football as an auction item at an upcoming event.

Dahl said the event would not have been possible without all of the great support from the participants, celebrities and sponsors such as Heineken USA, Roy Anderson Corp., Haynes Electric, Arrow Sysco and

Fab four to 'Get Back!'

Get Back!" a Beatles tribute featuring Broadway and London cast members of Beatlemania! will perform two free shows at 7 and 9:30 p.m. Feb. 6 at Boomtown Casino.

The "Get Back!" show travels nostalgically down the long and winding road on which four young Brits — John, Paul, George and Ringo — made music history. The four performers trace the evolution of the Beatles through songs and costumes from the Ed Sulivan "mop-top" debut through the "Abbey Road/Let It Be" period.

"Get Back!" is a scaled-down version of the Broadway production entitled Beatlemania! The show formed in 1988 after the Beatlemania! touring company closed, and has since toured internationally. "Get Back!" is among the lineup of entertainers Boomtown Casino has scheduled to appear in Fe-welcomes back the influential five-time Grammy Awardwinner B. B. King in a night dedicated to the blues. The King of the Blues will be performing Feb. 17 and 18 at 7:30 p.m.

B. B. King has mixed traditional blues, jazz, swing and mainstream pop into a unique sound. His singing is richly me-lodic, both vocally and in the "singing" that comes from his guitar, Lucille. In B. B.'s words, "When I sing, I play in my mind; the minute I stop singing or ally, I start to sing by playing Lucille." some of his hits and concert staples include "The Thrill is Gone," "Everyday I have the Blues," "Caldonia" and "Why I Sing the Blues."

King was born in 1925 on a cotton plantation in Itta Bena, Miss. He used to play his guitar on the street corners for only dimes. After a touch childhood and little schooling, King hitchhiked to Memphis to jump start his career in the music industry

After his first big break in 1948 on a Memphis radio station, King's career exploded. With worldwide concerts, television appearances and nightly singing performances, B. B. King became the well-known "King of the Blues."

Television appearances, commercials, guitar instruction videos and worldwide concerts as well as "B. B. King's Blues Club" in Memphis, keep King in the public spotlight and moving faster than ever.

Mississippi's economy cools off

Mississippi's index of leading economic indicators continue to predict a slow-down in the state economy during the coming months. The leading index of 92.3 recorded in October is a 1.2 percent decrease from the September index of 93.4. The October decrease marked the third decrease in as many months and fourth decrease during the last five months. For comparison purposes, the U.S. leading index, including the October increase, has risen nine consecutive months.

The October index decrease was broad based. Only one component, residential construction, contributed positively to the leading index. Initial claims for unemployment benefits increased 10.8 percent in October from the month ago level. While this level is below the year ago level, it marks the second rise in as many months and ends a downward trend noticed since March in initial unemployment

Manufacturing employment slipped 0.5 percent in October from the September level. The average manufacturing workweek length for October was 41.0 hours, a decrease of 0.5 percent from the September level of 41.2 hours. The decrease marked the third decline in as many months, suggesting little or no pressure to increase employment in the coming months.

The real U.S. money supply held steady during October from the month earlier and was up 1.1 percent from the previ-

The lone bright spot for the leading index during October was growth in residential construction permits. October permit values jumped 18.0 percent over September values, responding in part to a lowering of mortgage rates. However, the value of permits remain 0.8 percent below the value posted a signals of upcoming changes in state economic activity six to eight months away. It is calculated by combining statistics on housing starts, unemployment, manufacturing employment, workweek length, and the national money supply.

There are seasonal fluctuations in employment figures resulting from charges in weather, farm employment, major holidays or the opening and closing of schools. The employment figures mentioned in this report have been adjusted to remove the effect of seasonal fluctuations so that month to month changes in employment primarily capture basic economic activity variations.

Mississippi's index of coincident economic indicators suggests the state economy is now churning at a pace as slow as any time in over a year. The October index level of 75.1, a 1.4 percent decrease from the September index of 76.2. The October decrease marked the third monthly decrease in as many months and fourth decrease during the most recent six months. For comparison purposes, the U.S. coincident index decreased 0.1 percent in October from the month ago level. The October decrease in the U.S. coincident index ended an increasing trend dating back to

The board based decrease in the coincident index was bolstered only by equipment sales. Merchandise retail sales decreased 4.2 percent during October from the month ago level and remained 1.8 percent below the ear ago level. Mississippi consumers continued to re-strain their merchandise expenditures. Weekly earnings decreased 0.3 percent from the month ago level, yet remain 3.7 percent above the year ago level. Although the October decrease in y carnings marked the third such decrease in as many months, the current level continues to outpace the year ago developed by the Mississippi earnings level which has been Center for Policy Research and constrained by a decreased Nonagricultural employment held steady during October from the month ago level and is off 0.5 percent from the year ago level. Equipment sales kept the October index from sliding any further by increas-ing 12.2 percent from the month ago level and 20.0 percent from the year ago level. This continues an upward trend begin-ning in April as businesses, farmers and individuals continue to invest in machinery, equipment and supplies.

The Mississippi Coincident Index of Economic Indicators, developed by the Mississippi Center for Policy Research and Planning, is a monthly approximation of current aggregate economic activity, including employment, earnings and sales measures. It provides a gauge of current economic conditions across the state. Establishment based employment, adjusted for seasonality, dropped by 300 job during October from the September level. Manufacturing jobs decreased by 1,100 with 500 of those jobs coming from the transportation equipment industry alone. Construction jobs were down 600 over the period. Transportation and public utilities jobs were off 500 over the period as well. Significant job gains were in the trade and government sectors. Trade and government jobs increased by 2,000 and 700, respectively, over the period.

Establishment based employment, adjusted by seasonality, dropped 5,500 jobs from the year ago level. The manufacturing sector was the hardest hit as employment decreased by 13,700 jobs over the year. The many losses were industry wide with the largest decreases coming from the transportation equipment and textile and apparel jobs.

Transportation equipment and texile and apparel jobs decreased 3,700 and 3,800 jobs, respectively. Transportation and utilities and trade jobs decreased 1,300 and 1,900, respectively. All employment so gl year; however, construction jobs increased by 3,700 over the year. Also, services and government jobs increased by 3,800 and 4,700, respectively.

The U.S. economy continues to grow at a modest 1.5-2.0 percent annual rate. Retail sales are sluggish with less credit spending despite higher consumer confidence. Inflationary pressure remains in check. This bodes well for after Christmas spending. Perhaps if consumers spend at their income levels before Christmas, the early spring sales won't suffer due to consumer retrenching.

The financial markets are extra cautious about where the economy is heading. Bond and stock prices headed south on federal reserve chairman Greenspan's comments about a possible adjustment coming in the stock market. However, the markets have rebounded somewhat since. We should expect the next federal reserve meeting to be followed by extreme caution.

Lee said he commissioners are also considering District 3 Supervisor Lisa Cowand's request to allow at least small dogs into the campsite. They are now banned.

McCleod Park comes under supervision of the five-member County Parks and Recreation Board, and Lee said they will make that decision.

He said he has researched other parks where dogs are allowed. "And, there are strict leash laws, and the owners are held responsible for anyone who might get bitten by a dog or for any property damage that might occur.

He said he thinks strong county laws could be written to allow dogs into the campsite.

But, that's a decision that's up to the Board," said Lee. "But, we know, probably people are now bringing in small dogs, but they're staying overnight or maybe two nights, so there's no way we can catch them."

Lee said, working within budgeted funds, four new camp sites were added last year with water; electricity and sewerage hookups, plumbing and other repairs were made to two bath houses.

A third bathhouse is under construction, and will add more enclosed toilets, showers and dressing rooms, Lee said, but work has been slow because the park is using inmate labor on the project.

McLeod Park is situated in wetlands and the buffer zone that surrounds the giant Stennis Space Center. It has a capacity of housing 350 to 400 campers at the park on a given day. There are 27 waterfront campsite and 36 in the interior of the park. There are also tent and van campsites, and primitive group campsites.

Reservations for campsites are advised at least seven days in advance. For more information, call 467-1894.

The crowd exceeded our expections, but it could not have gone any better," Peterson said. You could not tell who was from out of state and who was local. They were just hometown people and well-behaved."

Peterson said he called in the state Highway Patrols and the Waveland Bay St. Louis police departments for additional help. He said about half of his department was patrolling the area over the weekend.

"It was an awesome sight to see (the fans) completely engulf this otherwise calm and sleepy town," said Marsha Theriot Favre of Kiln. "A great number of locals were on hand acting as proud ambassadors to our guests, teaching them how to eat crawfish and explaining how jambalaya is made."

"It was a proud moment in time for the Kiln and the locals really displayed their version of true Southern hospitality. Quite an achievement considering the number and the rivers of liquid refreshments being consumed."

Peterson said the only complaints his office received concerned the towing of vehicles. Although an exact number has not been confirmed, some estimates are as high as 80 vehicles towed during Friday night's festivities.

"I talked to the officers and they felt the (towed) vehicles had to be moved," Peterson said. "It was a judgement call."

The sheriff said the officers believed the vehicles were either blocking traffic or presented a hinderance in the event an emergency vehicle would have been needed.

"We certainly don't want to tow anybody," Peterson said. "Some were towed off of private facilities, and some off of Kiln-DeLisle Road.

good time. If (towing) was our only problem, I'm happy."
